Note from the CDC Management,

2020 is still far from over with four weeks left its definitely been a year we will never forget. Here at the CDC we are hopeful for the new year 2021 and looking ahead with some innovated ideas and curriculum planning. This year we took the challenges we faced and came up with new ways to offer curriculum. During the shut-down with help of the SLO and Marketing Specialist we were able to offer Distance Learning lessons with curriculum and crafts for the parents via Facebook (5 lessons/week), we provided our staff with training opportunities, and prepared our First Five initiatives/training/ASQ surveys to prepare returning families with support and guidance, we handed out the books to the families who participated in the Reading program and with the help and guidance of our fire department we were able to look at our fire prevention and make improvements. With four weeks left in the year we are looking forward to the holidays and thankful for our health and safety in this current posture. We have planned a spirit week the week of Christmas with many fun activities planned for the children. We appreciate your patience and support during these transitional times and this last year. We want to send out our love and support for the families that lost their homes in the recent fires and let you know our thoughts are with you all.

Happy Holidays,
from: The CDC Management & Staff

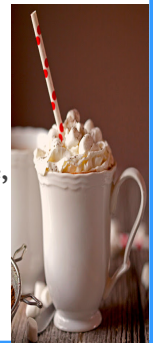

Teaching New Traditions

This year the holidays will look different from the years prior. When we think of holidays, we think of celebrating with family and friends. This is a great time to create new traditions with your children. It's important with children to stick to routines and not overwhelm yourself or the children. Limit screen time, get plenty of rest and spend quality family time together.

Ideas for new traditions:

- Find ways to offer support to those less fortunate donate food to a local food pantry.
- Have the children make hygiene bags to donate i.e.. toothbrushes, mask, toilet paper, wipes etc.
- Do holiday crafts as a family
- Use this time to teach your children about your family culture, traditions and heritage.
- Plan and cook a meal together
- Play board games
- Have a movie night
- Adopt a family

Payments are due the 2nd and the 16th of the month!

We want to wish everyone a safe and a happy holidays!!!

Fee Adjustments: All federal holidays are accounted in the current fee schedules. We are not authorized to re-adjust fees for vacations, time off or sick leave. Thank you for your understanding!
